

Brunschwig & Fils

Bespoke Birds

Ever since designer Michael S. Smith was tapped to help revamp Brunschwig & Fils (brunschwig.com), little additions have been appearing that we're happy to see. The fabric house has introduced a new line of hand-painted, customizable wallcoverings with gorgeous panels crafted to meet exact specifications.

Juliska

Flower Power

Known for quiet patterns and muted colors, Juliska (juliska.com) is amping up the palette with its newest introduction, "Field of Flowers." Based on 17th- and 18th-century botanical drawings, these vibrant hues are reminiscent of a meadow of wildflowers. So if you can't dine alfresco, bring the outdoors in.

Todd Romano

Lively Lacquer

Decorating veteran Todd Romano (toddatexanderromano.com) has been quietly designing and producing standout furniture for well over a decade. Perfect little pieces like "The Gazelle Table" are gems that add "that little something" to any room or project. Available in custom colors.

Birch Lane

In Good Company

It's not often that entire home collections are born overnight. But when furnishings giant Wayfair and its creative director, Christiane Lemieux (founder of DwellStudio), decided to go for it, they created Birch Lane (birchlane.com) in about six months. Classic designs and timeless style are the hallmarks of this new brand, and they show up dramatically in furnishings, lighting, rugs, drapery, bedding, tabletop, and decor.

Corbett Wright

Finally—home office furniture that will make you want to work for hours on end! Corbett Wright (corbett-wright.com), the debut line from Nancy Corbett, a former Wall Street employee, combines beautifully decorated surfaces with highly functional furniture. The line includes a desk, end tables with file storage options, a bookshelf, and this regal-looking secretary/media cabinet. Completely customizable, and available in numerous patterns, these must-have pieces will make getting down to business a breeze.

Matthew Studios

Katherine Wildt O'Brien's love for crystals started when she worked at a gemstone shop as a teenager. In 2008 she launched her own company, Matthew Studios (matthewstudiosny.com), named after her pet rabbit, with a line of opulent crystal lighting. She expanded the line to include tables and accessories, and now has added jazzy hardware such as knobs and pulls.
